

SHE RAISED OLD NED

Mrs. Schott Becomes Angry and Smashes Windows, Etc.

FIRED A ROCK AT HER JOE

A Dutiful Bartender's Quiet Conversation Harshly Interrupted by the Furious Outbreak of His Recreant Dove.

The domestic difficulties of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schott were transferred from their home in the eastern part of the city to the Union saloon, where Mr. Schott is employed as bartender on the night shift. Joe was attending to his duties in waiting on customers. The curtain of the front window was not drawn and passers by could see him there, laughing and joking with men at the bar. Suddenly there was a crash of glass and a big rock came through the window, missing Joe, of course, for it was a woman who threw it and Joe was the object of her aim, but it barely missed a huge mirror at his back that is a very expensive piece of furniture. As soon as she threw the stone Mrs. Schott walked rapidly around the corner and back into the alley behind the saloon. She soon made her presence there known by smashing in back windows with a beer bottle.

The police were sent for and Assistant Chief O'Brien came on the scene. He asked her what she was doing by such actions and she began to abuse him and her husband. The officer sent for Joe to come out.

"What has she been doing?" asked the cop.

"Doing? She's been throwing rocks at me and breaking other people's windows," said the man wrathfully.

"Do you want her arrested?"

"Sure I do; take her away; she's no good, lock her up. I don't care what you do with her, but I don't want her to bother me no more."

"That's all right, if you will appear against her, come along Mrs.," and the woman was led away. She was not drunk and after walking her towards the jail, the kind hearted officer decided to let her go home on a promise to stay there. She started to go but as soon as she thought the coast was clear she turned back to go up town again. She had not fooled the officer, and before she had gone far O'Brien had her again in custody. So last night Mrs. Joe Schott slept in a dark, creepy cell in the city jail book for disturbance.

The cause of all this is the fury of a woman scorned. All has not been smooth sailing on the matrimonial sea for Mr. and Mrs. Schott for some time. Storms have been frequent and severe. Several times, so the neighbors say, Mrs. Schott has threatened summary vengeance on Joe, and once a gun was taken from her because she threatened his life. One day, it is said, Joe slept late and after one or two calls failing to wake him up, Mrs. Schott fired a couple of big fire crackers at his bedroom door. Schott thought he was shot or shot at and didn't stop running until he got out in the back yard in his night shirt. Then he found it was only a joke and again entered the house.

Yesterday morning, however, he claims to have found evidence that his wife was unfaithful to him and accuses her of grave offenses with a man whom he says she visited during the morning. An attorney was consulted and further proceedings at law are to be inaugurated. Mr. Schott is given a good reputation by those who know him well.

CAT ADOPTS A YOUNG RAT.

Singular Case Noted at a Camp on the Drainage Canal.

Down at the camp of section 9 they were troubled with rats, says the Lemont Observer, and in order to exterminate the pest brought several cats there. One day a nest of young rats was found and given to a mother cat and her little kittens. All the rats were devoured but one, singular to relate, was allowed to live. In fact it was made one of the kitten family, and allowed the same privilege of nursing as the little kittens. It is their inseparable companion, sharing their home and sport, and going whither it will, unharmed by cat or kitten. It has become a household pet, and is as much like the kittens in its habits as could well be imagined. This is not a "fish story," but is vouched by several in town who have gone out to section 9 to see this most curious exemplification of lamb and lion lying down together. It is beyond human ken to fathom the motives that prompted Mrs. Cat and her kittens to spare the rat's life and make it one of them.

The Capitol Site.

From the Bozeman Chronicle.

Considering the fact that Bozeman gave the Agricultural college one of the best farms in this valley, in addition to the 160 acres of this fertile land, a vast and valuable tract for its college buildings, together with any and every concession ever asked for, the actions of Helena people in the capital site matter is one which will fill the people of this state with considerable surprise and concern. Every site offered to the commission last week was put in at Chicago and Denver prices. There was nothing small about the bids except the tracts offered. It goes without saying that there will probably be a small bid of ground purchased and a million dollar building planned and erected in such a manner as to require additional ground hereafter.

Another blameworthy feature of this business is the fact that Richards appointed Helena men to the commission. Not one should have been placed thereon, for this is a matter in which the whole state is interested, and instead of being confronted with a lot of special pleaders, real estate agents, lawyers, etc., to argue, browbeat and bulldoze the commission it should have gone on to the ground and made its own selection without consulting the interest of any one or party.

The Helena gentlemen on the commission have their friends to please and they are very likely to act accordingly.

We deem it a very unfortunate circumstance that such a condition of affairs exist and we undertake to say that if the commission had been selected entirely from the outside that Helena to-day would be offering some very acceptable sites very close to the residence portion of the city as a gift to the state. The capital fight is over and the Chronicle dropped it as soon as the result was announced, but it cannot be denied that if Anaconda had secured this institution that the state would to-day have a deed to a large piece of property for its capital. In fact had any other city, aside from Helena, received the capital the matter of a site would have been settled without a cent of expense to the state.

Bail was fixed at $1,000, and Legault went back to jail. Last evening a bond was filed with August Leslauris and Fred Gangner as sureties and the prisoner was released. He claims to be able to establish his innocence of the crime as charged.

BLOODY SALOON ROW

One Man Found in a Pitiable Condition in the Spokane.

UNATTENDED FOR HOURS

The Police on the Lookout for the Bruiser Who Left His Victim in Such a Helpless Condition.

A man was found lying in a pool of blood, with several gashes in his head and insensible, in the Spokane saloon last evening about 9 o'clock.

Dr. Douglas was summoned and cared for the injured man until he was identified as James Doherty, an employee at the works, and then the patient was turned over to Dr. F. L. St. Jean, who ordered him taken to St. Ann's hospital. The extent of his injuries could not be told last night, but it is thought the cuts are only scalp wounds. However, they may prove serious.

How they were received and how it happened is a mystery, owing to the failure of the proprietor of the place, John Foran, to throw any light on the case. He claimed that the man came in from the sidewalk bleeding like a stuck hog, but he did not show the trail or trace of blood from the door to the rear of the saloon. The doctors expressed it as their opinion that the injured man was knocked insensible by the blows when he received them and could not have walked any distance.

Men who were in the house said the injured man had been there since 5 o'clock in the afternoon, and no one paid any attention to him. The bartender said he was there when he came on shift, but he did not think he was seriously hurt.

Chief White turned in a scathing report on Foran for not reporting the case and his evident desire to shield the perpetrator, which made the saloonkeeper exceedingly wroth and he declared his intention of shooting three or four policemen. His bartender locked up his revolver and closed the house.

Later in the night a man was found who is hurt and another man fighting in the saloon about 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and that the injured man was struck by the other fellow with a chair. He furnished a description of the man wanted and the officers are on the lookout for him, as he is a well-known tough of the bad lands.

Heretofore tickets to the East have been obtainable only via the Northern routes or by the Short Line. Since May 1st, however, arrangements have been made whereby round-trip tickets to the East can now be secured via Salt Lake City and the famous Rio Grande Western railway. "Great Salt Lake Route." The trip from Ogden to Denver via the scenic route is the grandest to be found anywhere on this continent. No European trip of equal length compares with it in variety and grandeur of scenery and wealth of novel interest. Teachers and others who intend taking advantage of N. E. A. rates to Denver should see that their tickets are routed via the Rio Grande Western. That line has two fast express trains daily and is noted for the elegance of its equipment and the perfection it has attained in its service. It is the most perfect line of railway in the West.

IT IS characteristic of women of the Indo-European races to have wide hips and narrow waists. In other races the hips are narrower and waists larger. The American woman appears, in consequence of her large hip measurement, to have a smaller waist than she actually has. To the unskilled masculine eye a girl with a waist of 22 inches may seem to have a wasp-like figure, when in reality her measurement is very near what it should be to satisfy the critical judgment of an artist or her family physician.

The Venus de Medici is 5 feet 5 inches in height, 35 waist, 34 bust, 41 inches around hips.

The cloak models in the large New York dry goods houses are about the same height. The measurement required of a 5-foot 5-inch model is as follows: Waist 24, bust 34, hips 40, base of skull to waist 16,iceps 12.

A prominent physician gives as the correct measurement of well formed, well developed, healthy woman of 5 foot 5 inches, waist 24 bust 34,iceps 12½, wrists 5½, hips 40, calf 13½, ankle 7.

The doctor's model woman is about the same dimensions as the cloak model.

This Corset Waist has the style and grace of a perfectly modeled Corset with the ease peculiar to waists. Black. Sizes—18 to 28. PRICE $1.25.
